We Create Digital Learning

We design innovative learning technology solutions and support our clients with their learning and development projects.

A bit about us

Real Projects are expert course creators, with 15 years' experience delivering innovative elearning. Our focus on creative content and a rewarding learner journey is why the organisations that depend on our work include the NHS, Marks and Spencer, Maersk, GlaxoSmithKline, 3M, the Professional Football Scouts Association, and more than a hundred other businesses, from multinationals to start-ups.

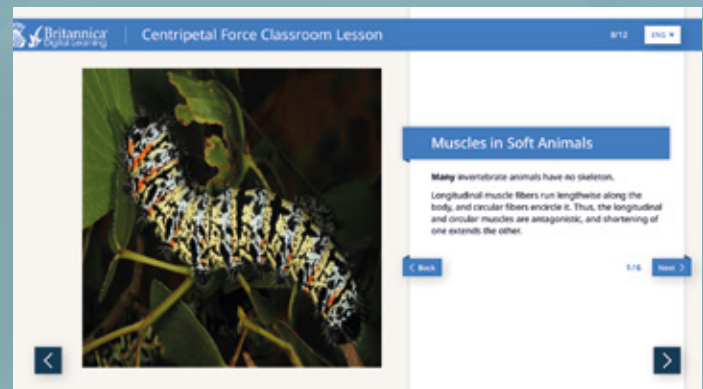

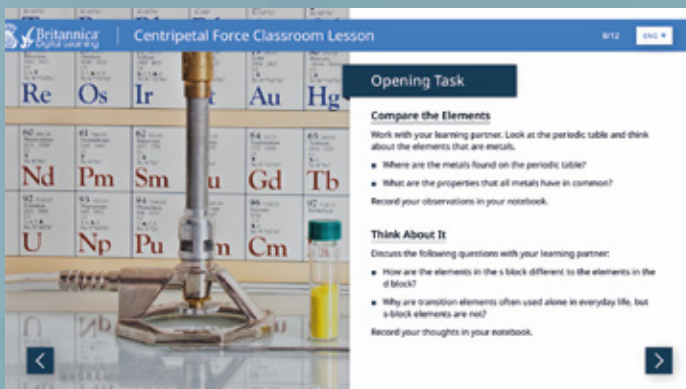

We're also remote working experts: we've been doing it ourselves for nearly a decade.

A tool for evidence-based clinical decision making

Introduction

What do you do if you have been given the resources for a new intervention that does not have an evidence base?

What about having an expert who you trust about benefits from an experience, but you are only first evidence for a competency of a fellow expert group?

Perhaps you have read some recent evidence that suggests a different intervention to that which is offered by your service and you are unable to use it with one of your clients?

R.A.I.D. Defence Cycle | Rapid Action Inflated Defence

DETER: Deterrence is the most effective way to prevent an incident from occurring. It is achieved through the use of physical and psychological barriers to prevent an incident from occurring.

DETECT: Detecting an incident as early as possible allows for a rapid response and minimizes the impact of the incident.

DEFUSE: Defusing an incident involves taking actions to prevent the incident from escalating and to reduce the impact of the incident.

DEFEND: Defending an incident involves taking actions to prevent the incident from spreading and to contain the impact of the incident.

DESENSITIZE: Desensitizing an incident involves taking actions to prevent the incident from recurring and to reduce the impact of the incident.
